

WHAT MAKES A GOOD CANDIDATE FOR THE NEW IPI PROJECT LEADER CERTIFICATION?

Believe that trust and collaboration are essential to a successful project.

You have seen benefit from partnering on your projects, maybe even years ago, but think it could be even better.

Practical, real-life training, from people who've really been on projects and learned what works and doesn't work.

Don't want to waste your time. You want an intense program that sets you up for even more success.

Having a certification that shows you have real know-how for delivering partnering, and projects that succeed is a plus.

You don't want to dread getting up and going to your project, you want to feel excited to work with a high performing project team, even when there are problems.
